According to the conductor all of the members of the party had health certificates when they boarded the train at New Orleans. He stated that the cases developed after they left New Orleans.

There were several Owensboro people on the train, but they occupied a coach some distance from the one occupied by the party from New Orleans. Mr. Ham Baker, of Greenwood, Miss., was on the train. Before leaving the train at Horse Branch the conductor told Mr. Baker and other gentlemen that twelve cases of yellow fever were in the rear coach. He said, that three of the cases were serious. The conductor was in doubt about taking the Pullman coach with the sick peo-• ple aboard into Louisville. He thought that he would side track and Louisville and get orders.

HIRAM POWERS TRIAL.

The Famous Murder Case Began Here Wednesday

Morning.

The trial of Hiram C. Powers charged with the murder of Fitzhugh Renfrow the 31st day of last March was began at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning and will be completed today. The case was stated for the Commonwealth by Commonwealth's Attorney B. D. Ringo in a speech of about three quarters of an hour in length.

The evidence for the Commonwealth was practically all in by noon yesterday. Dr. J. H. Maxwell and William Park were the eye witnesses who were immediately near where the killing was done, and they both gave extremely damaging evidence against the defendant telling practically the same story about the circumstances of the killing. Several other witnesses gave important evidence for the prosecution.

Placed Close to Japanese Shrubs. Two Wither and the Third is Slowly Dying.

Col. C. M. Barnett, collector of customs at the port of Louisville, Next Tuesday, August 15 at 11 tells a strange story of three Russian mulberry trees and two Japanese flowering trees which stand in a row on one side of the driveway leading up to his residence here in Hartford.

> The trees were planted nearly two years ago, and until the outbreak of had flourished and grown strong. When war was declared in the Far Its leaves lost their luster, and some of them on the lower limbs grew pale around the edges. When Port Arthur fell, the tree passed into a sudden and irrevocable decline, and within two weeks after this historic event, it was quite dead.

> The Japanese shrub next to it on the contrary, waxed stronger and put forth new shoots.

> A little later the second Russian mulberry tree began to wither. During the bitter land compaign it stood sickly and yellow, and when Mukden fell, it too shed its untimely leaves and died.

> Mr. Barnett says that the third mulberry is now beginning to show the effects of the silent and mysterious influence that slew its two companions. He has obtained the services of a scientist, well versed in forestry, who will make an investigation of the remarkable phenomenon.

> When some of Mr. Barnett's friends called his attention to that section of the Federal statutes which forbids a government employe expressing an opinion on a conflict between foreign powers, he said:

> "I can't help what nature is doing in my yard. The fact remains that the Russian mulberries are now dead and that the Japanese trees are more robust than ever."
